SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS

Sustains Decision of Lower Court in Camp Lake Ditch Case

CASE WAS HARD FOUGHT

Oetting Bros. Ice Company Wins Case in Highest State Tribunal, Which Will End Case

The outcome of the case of Robert Runyard et al vs. Oetting Bros. Ice Company, which was last year carried from the County Court of Kenosha County to the Supreme Court of the State of Wisconsin, has been watched with keen interest, not only by the interested parties but by the whole surrounding community. This case, on account of its long standing, and the direct bearing of the decision, however it might be, on the value of a considerable amount of land, has attracted a large amount of attention, and much speculation has been going on in regard to what the final decision would be.

As will be remembered, last July, the Kenosha County Court decided the case in favor of the Ice Company, this decision, however, was not satisfying to the plaintiff and the case was immediately carried to the higher court.

The affair had its beginning thirty-six years ago, when residents of the vicinity petitioned the town board to dig a ditch from Camp Lake in a southerly direction, for the purpose of draining marsh lands bordering on North and South Camp Lake, as well as improving the public highway.

The petition was granted, the contract let, the ditch was dug from Camp Lake to the state line and the cause of future trouble was shaped. In the course of a few years the gradual filling in of the ditch, by vegetable growth, etc., caused the water in the lake to return to its former level. This state of affairs existed until the year of 1901, when men were employed to clean the ditch and the water was again lowered.

About this time the Oetting Bros. Ice Company erected a concrete dam at the head of the lake on land belonging to one of the plaintiffs, without objection. However no real trouble appeared until nearly five years later when the dam was torn down by persons unknown and the water thereby lowered about three feet. This left the defendents ice house far back from the water, and cottages which had been built on the lake shore were six or seven hundred feet therefrom. Trouble then began to brew and the matter was taken into court. The case was in litigation for months and when finally a decision was reached it was in favor of the defendent. The court stating that the plaintiffs showed no justification for drawing down the water in 1906. and that the defendent had been greatly injured thereby and was entitled to relief. And now to close the case the Supreme court has upheld the decision of the County court, and has given the defendent the right to fill the ditch at the expense of the plaintiff.

This will restore the waters of Camp Lake to its former level, which will not only benefit the ice company but will make the place more attractive to the many summer visitors and will also increase the value of much of the bordering property.

He Had a Choice of Churches.

A young man who travels in the west for a local manufacturing firm was telling his friends of his trip.

"Last Sunday I was in a little town that boasted one small hotel," he said, "and I asked the landlord where I could go to church."

"Well," he said, "I guess you want to know the different denominations. You can take your choice of what we got. We got a Reformed Presbyterian, an' we got a United Presbyterian an' we got another Presbyterian that ain't neither reformed or united."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

DEDICATES R. R. HOME

Deneen Praises Railroad Organization a Builders of $100,000 Institution

"It is to organization such as yours that we are indebted for the caring of men who have become incapacitated for work by age and accident," Governor Charles S. Deneen told the officials of the new Home for Aged and Disabled Railroad Employes of America in Highland Park at the formal opening, which was held Tuesday afternoon.

Railroad officials and officers of the various railroad brotherhoods to the number of 2,000 heard the chief executive of the state of Illinois praise the work in which they are interested, and when he finished was greeted with applause.

Invitations to attend the dedication ceremonies were extended to 1,000 persons, and of this number more than half were present. A special train on the Chicago and North Western railroad, which stopped opposite the home, brought guests from Chicago.

Governor Deneen spoke for twenty minutes. He said that the completon of the home was another evidence of the spirit of fraternity which is so marked and growing a characteristic of present day industrial relations.

Other speakers were: Hon. W. M. Dooley, mayor of Highland Park; Hon. L. S. Coffin of Fort Dodge, Ia.; Mrs. W. A. Murdock, William Kilpatrick and P. H. Morrisey.

Students from the North Western Military academy were present and music was furnished by the academy band.

The home was completed at a cost of $100,000, contributed by 2,000 lodges of the four brotherhoods of railroad employes. It is one of the most magnificent buildings along the North Shore.

Fireproof throughout it has accommodations for almost 100 men. There are now 35 inmates of the home and 23 applications for admittance have been received.

WADSWORTH P.O. ROBBED

Force Entrance Through Window But Secure Nothing of Value

Robbers visited Wadsworth Thursday night, robbing two places, as follows:

The postoffice, Thomas Strang, postmaster, and the general merchandise store of C. A. Heydecker.

In neither place did the robbers get anything of value, the postoffice netting them but a few dollars, mostly stamp books.

The robbers broke a window glass in each case and thus opened the window. In the postoffice they tore open letters and while there may have been money in some Postmaster Strang did not know of any loss in this regard. Checks and money orders taken from the letters were left on the floor, showing the robbers did not care for this sort of loot, and were likely tramps or amatures. The safe was not broken open for there was little of value in it and Postmaster Strang preferred leaving it unlocked rather than lock it and have some robber blow it to pieces and find nothing for his pains.

In the Heydecker store they went through the rear window, but so far as he can learn nothing of value was taken.

Two tramps were seen hanging about the village early Thursday and the belief is that they may have committed the robberies.

GEO. VOGEL PROMOTER OF RACE TRACK

Horse racing, the pastime which a few ago was so popular throughout the country, is to be revived in Richmond township through the efforts of Geo. Vogel, well known Solon horseman, who has perfected plans for the building of the race track at Solon Mills. On Thursday last Mr. Vogel closed a deal with W. J. Overton for a five-year lease on thirty-four acres of land just north of the village of Solon as a site for the new driving park. By the terms of the lease Mr. Vogel pays an annual rental of $400 for the property.

Work of grading and laying out the track has not yet been started, but will likely be taken up within a few days as it is Mr. Vogel's intention to have the track completed at the earliest possible date. The park is being built by Mr. Vogel for training purposes mostly, but he also plans on pulling off several matiness during the coming season and lovers of horse racing in Richmond and adjoining towns will no doubt have the opportunity of seeing some first class races at Solon this summer.—Richmond Gazette.

KILLED BY THE CARS

Was Walking on Track and Did Not Hear Train Approaching

DEATH IS INSTANTANEOUS

North Western Depot Scene of What Might Have Been Wholesale Death of Four People

Peter Zelenauslkis, a Lithuanian 31 years old, boarding at 907 Market street Waukegan, was struck and instantly killed by a Chicago and North Western train at 5:50 o'clock Sunday night. According to witnesses the engineer did everything in his power to prevent the accident. The noise of a passing freight train is believed to have made it impossible for the victim to here the train which approached him from the rear. The accident occurred between Water street and the depot.

Zelenaulkis and a friend had walked west from Market street and arrived at the tracks had started to walk north along the narrow path which runs west of the tracks. Two men and a woman preceded them. At the time a freight train was passing on the east track.

The fast train from the south was approaching on the south track. People standing on the depot platform saw the danger of the group of people if they did not step to one side and tried to warn them, but for some reason could not make them understand.

The engineer on the approaching train saw the danger of the [illegible] but thought of course that they would step to one side. The steam had been shut off and the train was coasting along impelled by its own momentum. The whistle shrieked out a warning some distance south of Water street. Still the people did not move. The brakes were applied and the engineer tooted his whistle several times as a warning. Quite oblivious of their danger the group of people did not move to one side, evidently thinking that the whistling was coming from the freight train which had just passed on the other track.

Ladies who stood on the platform covered their eyes in horrow while men turned their faces away, unwilling to witness what promised to be a wholesale slaughter. A moment later the accident occurred but by some unexplainable dispensation of Providence, all but one man escaped injury.

The steam chest of the engine struck him squarely in the back, breaking his back bone, it is believed, and fructured his skull. He was hurled crushed and bleeding beside the track. He was dead when picked up and death is believed to have been instantaneous.

Zelenaulkis is said to have resided in Milwaukee previous to coming to Waukegan. He is said to have a wife in the old country.

HOW THE WORLD HAS MOVED

Less Than a Century Ago Railroads and the Telegraph Were Deemed Impossibilities.

Alexander Wells, an old citizen of Wellsville, O., has a copy of an interesting and novel document issued by the school board of the town of Lancaster, O., in 1828. The question of steam railroads was in its incipient stage and a club of young men had been formed for the purpose of discussing the points at issue. They desired the use of the schoolhouse for purposes of debate. This was looked upon by the members of the board as an innovation bordering upon sacrilege, as indicated, which is the document in the possession of Mr. Wells. It reads as follows:

"You are welcome to the use of the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions in, but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossibilities and rank infidelity. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God had designed that his intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of 15 miles an hour, by steam, he would clearly have foretold it through his holy prophets. It is a device of Satan to lead immortal souls down to hell."

Such sentiments possibly reflected the feeling, to some extent, in the days of 65 years ago, but they sound strange at the present time, when the "device of Satan" is daily carrying people over the land at the rate of 60 or 70 miles an hour. The world has progressed somewhat since 1828.

MEETS TRAGIC DEATH

CRUSHED BENEATH ASH CAR

Widow Had Gone to Meet Husband But Instead Met Messenger With Tidings that He had Met Death in Accident

George Hilliard, a well known resident of Waukegan, met death Monday night at the North Side Electric plant in that city, when he was crushed between an ash hopper and an ash car on which he was riding from the furnace.

Hilliard had been employed at the plant as fireman's helper for a short time only, and it was his duty to load the car and cart it down the tracks to the hopper where it was dumped. He did so Monday night, and jumping on the front end of the car started it sliding down toward the hopper. There is not much clearance between the hopper and the car beneath. As he passed it he tried to dodge the hopper but the hopper strurk his shoulder, inflicting serious injuries some of which it later developed, were internal and fatal.

He was rushed to the hospital and while everything was done to save his life he died at 9 o'clock, within an hour after the accident.

Mr. Hilliard was well known in Waukegan and also throughout the county. He had lived in Waukegan about ten years, having moved there from Benton township where he had lived most of his life. At Waukegan he dabbled in real estate for a few years and at various times owned several houses.

Mr. Hilliard was married three times being divorced from his first two wives. His last marriage occurred only five months ago, when he married Mrs. Kate Bearman. She had gone to the Water street hill to await the return of her husband who always quit work between 9:30 and 10:00 o'clock, and there she was found and was told the sad tidings.

The coroners jury returned a verdict of accidental death. The facts as developed at the inquest were that the brakeman had dropped the brake which is used to controle the car and could not stop it. He yelled to Mr. Hilliard to jump but the warning was not heeded. The jurymen were of the opinion that a different kind of a brake is needed on the car, but did not recommend this in their verdict.

Mr. Hilliard has no children of his own but his last wife has one son. The deceased was 53 years of age and besides his wife is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Andrew Nelson and Mrs. Will Mullen of Waukegan and Mrs. James Cummings of Benton.

MRS. SHEEHAN DIES AT LAKE VILLA

Death entered the home William Sheehan at Lake Villa last Sunday afternoon and removed therefrom the wife and mother, Mrs. Mary Sheehan, after a short illness the cause of which was heart trouble.

Mrs, Sheehan was about fifty years of age and was well known and highly respected throughout the community and her death is the cause of sincere sorrow among her many friends.

Besides her husband she is survived by five children, one daughter, Mrs. Henry Atwell and two sons Daniel, and Jos. of Lake Villa and two sons, Howard and William of Billings, Montana.

The funeral was held from the home at nine o'clock this (Thursday) morning and at the Catholic church at Rosecrans at 10:30 o'clock, with Father Lynch officiating.

Inertia of the Nerves.

The researches and experiments of a French scientist have led him to the conclusion that the cerebral nervous system is incapable of perceiving more than an average of ten seperate impressions per second. After each excitation of the nerves a period of inertia follows, lasting about one-tenth of a second, and during this period a new impression cannot be made. According to the inv stigations of this scientist a person cannot make more than ten, or at the most a dozen, separate voluntary movements of any kind in a second, although the muscles, independently of the will, are capable of making as many as 30 or 40.

STATE LAW IS URGED

Dr. Evans Strongly Favors Pasteurization of Milk and its Products.

State wide pasteurization of milk to save the lives of Iliinoisans, especially babies, was advocated Monday by Health Commissioner W. A. Evans, testifying before the joint legislative committee to investigate tuberculine tests and pasteurization of milk and its products.

The meeting was held in the Chicago law offices of Speaker Edward D. Shurtleff in the Title and Trust building. Senators McKenzie, Pemberton and Hearn, and Representatives Bush, McConnell, Allison and Tippit, in addition to the speaker, were present.

The investigation was ordered by the general assembly in lieu of the action on numerous bills imposing more or less drastic state supervision of the dairies. Loud objection was made by the farmers to the expense of the tuberculin tests, which according to Dr. Evans, would not be necessary if there were general pasteurization—that being an inexpensive requirement. Farmers have been indignant at the prospect of heavy financial loss if they should be compelled to kill their tuberculous cows. Dr. Evans said that if the milk were pasteurized there would be no need of killing the animals, although they should be segregated. In this way and by prohibiting the importation of tuberculosis stock, Dr. Evans said Illinois milk in its raw state would approach purity.

Illinois needs a law requiring pasteurization, said the health commissioner, It would kill all disease germs and 99 per cent or all germ life.

Should the same restrictions asked Senator McKenzie, be put on creameries and cheese factories as upon dairies?

All their milk should be pasteurized replied Dr. Evans. Butter and cheese both carry tubercles, although in a less degree than raw milk.

AGED RESIDENT IS DEAD

Enoch Bartholomew Succums at the Advanced Age of Eighty-seven.

Tuesday morning of this week at the County Hospital in Chicago occurred the death of Enoch Bartholomew, a former resident of this village and a man well known throughout Lake County. The direct cause of his death was a fall which he received some little time ago in which he sustained a broken shoulder, this injury coupled with the infirmaties age was more than his feeble constitution could stand and after a few weeks struggle with death he passed away on the thirteenth day of April, 1910, at the age of eighty-seven years and eleven months.

Mr. Bartholomew was born in Lincolnshire, England in the month of May 1822, and came to America when about thirty years of age. His wife preceeeed him to the land of rest nearly forty years ago, and four of his seven children have also been laid to rest, his daughter, Mrs. F. G. Hooper, with whom he had made his home for many years, having passed away about three years ago. Since that time the deceased has made his home with his other children and was living at the home of his daughter in Chicago when his condition became such that it was necessary to place him in the hospital.

He is survived by three children, two daughters, Mrs. Clara Butters of Chicago and Mrs. Clark whose home is in Michigan, and one son Ephriam who resides near Millburn, besides grandchildren and other relatives.

The remains were brought to this place this (Thursday) morning on the 10:40 train and the funeral will be held at the home of his son-in-law, F. G. Hooper, at 1:00 o'clock, with Rev. F. R. McNamer officiating. Burial in the Millburn cemetery.

Unwarranted Assumption.

A youth from the Horton neighborhood went to Nevada and got a marriage license. He supposed he was the girl's first choice, although he had never come to any "definite understanding" on the subject. The Sunday following the purchase of the license the couple went to church, and during the progress of the service the young man unfolded the certificate and, showing it to the girl beside him, said: "Let's go up after the preacher gets through and get married." The young woman was so shocked that she could not speak for a few moments. Then she told him he had spent his money foolishly and asked that he never speak to her again. The "sympathy of the community" is divided.—Kansas City Star.

ATTEMPTS TO WRECK FAST TRAIN

BOY MAKES CONFESSION

Says He Placed Ties on Track "Just for Fun"—Is Held to Grand Jury for Trial at October Term

Lewis Huson, aged twenty-two, the son of A. R. Huson of Chicago, who is at the present sime in Waukegan in the interest of the "Millenial Dawn" meetings being held there, is in the county jail charged with having placed three railroad ties on the tracks of the Soo Line a mile from Grayslake last Friday to wreck the fast psssenger train northbound, known as "Number Two."

The news was broken to the father, a highly respected man by Charles B. Beckwith of Grayslake. The father had no inkling until the uncle Tuesday morning went to see him. He finally managed to gasp out "Lewis is behind the bars Dick," and the puzzled and nearly overcome father had to draw the story out of him piecemeal.

The boy it is said is charged with having attempted to wreck a fast passenger train on the Soo Line. For the past six years he has been employed as a farm hand on the Beckwith farm near Grayslake.

Friday night when the fast passenger train passed a point a mile from Grayslake it ran over one of the three ties placed in its path. This did no damage but had the train not slowed to a stop, due to the action of the severed air brakes, it would in all probability have been wrecked with all its precious load of human freight, it is claimed. The management at once put detectives on the trail and they made a list of all the boys from the immediate vicinity who were in the habit of going into Grayslake.

Suspicion finally rested on Lewis Huson and when he was closely questioned it is said that he finally admitted that he had placed the ties on the track, giving as his reason "just for fun."

The lad had his hearing Monday and was bound over to the grand jury to have a trial in October. The boy is given a good character by all who know him. "He must have been insane, he is a good boy and would not do a thing like this wantonly" said his father. He feels his son's plight keenly, but is useing all means to protect and defend him.

PHYSICIANS ASKED MUCH

State Board of Health Wants to Know Every Detail of Death.

Physicians throughtout the state will be interested to known that they must make their returns of death certificates in a new fashion in the future, or the certificates will not be accepted by the state board of health.

It is apparent that the state board is not satisfied with the information that it has been receiving concerning those who have died, and they have made out and sent supplies to to the county clerks. These are most elaborate blanks which contain a vast amount of information concerning the patient that the physican has been so unfortunate as to see pass into need of a death certificate. The new blanks are as large again as the old ones and contain not only question as to the name, age, sex, place of death, place of bruial, name of undertaker, occupation, place of birth single and married but other matters that have been in the past buried in the bosoms of families.

In the case of the death of an infant, the state board cannot rest until it knows how the infant was fed, the secondary cause of death as well as the primary cause, the occupation of the deceased,, if grown, and also, "the previous occupation." The names of father, mother, and their birth places are wanted, and the physician is required to state the dates he attended the patient, inclusive, the last time he saw deceased prior to death, and at what time of day the death took place.

These blanks will be sent to physicians throughout the country and the filling out and returning them will, pass more or less pleasantly many recreation hours for the hard worked man of medicene.

SYNOPSIS.

Basil Tempest, world's greatest poet and novelist, refusing further to be lionized, shuts himself up in Craven, his country home. His gloomy meditations are broken by the admission of an American, Lucy Carew, who has come to England to get a study of the author, but more especially a synopsis of his new suite of poems. Tempest, angry at being disturbed, declares he will write no more, and asks Lucy to go. Repenting his rudeness in sending her out at night in the rain, Tempest hastens after her, but she refuses to return to Craven with him and takes lodging with a cottager. Next morning Lucy receives an apology from Tempest and an offer to assist her in writing her essay. Tempest dictates to Lucy, who listens spellbound as she writes. Lucy decides to go to London, but Tempest induces her to remain and read her manuscript to him. Lucy declines an invitation to dine with Tempest, who in anger and disappointment, goes to London. He asks Lady Ormond, with whom his name has been linked, to leave her husband, promising to marry her when the husband gets a divorce. She insists on the divorce first. Tempest departs for Craven. He burns Lady Ormond's picture after forcing a reluctant opinion of that lady from Lucy. The latter consents to continue the writing. Tempest burns the letters and photographs of Lady Ormond. He takes great pleasure in Lucy's presence as their work progresses.

At Mrs. Ramsdill's during the long afternoon hours she tried to set her mind in order, to ask herself what she was doing, and towards what end she went. There was no one in the world to whom she was responsible; unfortunately free, her life was her own. But this was no reason why she should create for herself espcecial unhappiness or danger! Her idea of writing a sketch of Mr. Tempest appeared the acme of folly! She would sink down on her bed in a state of nervous excitement, overstrained by the morning's effort and bewildered at her indifference to everything that was not Craven. But the character of her reflections left her no time to dwell on the practical face of the case or to tremble for an uncertain future. Tempest, live and absorbing, filled her thoughts. She had no need to control her attitude in her attic room and would throw herself on her bed, her dark head hidden in her arms, and thus relive the day until her feelings terrified her, and close to unhappiness she would rise, wander up and down, look out of the low window in the eaves to search the road to Craven. How long it seemed; and how it stretched away into her life as she looked, leading to an end she could not divine.

She usually ended by vigorously composing her mind and forcing herself to see that the folly of her interest was no indication for ultimate happiness. Her heart contracted at the reasonable thought that she was probably not at all in the mind of Mr. Tempest except as an unknown American, a woman of different taste and race—nothing more than an agreeable machine, an impersonal aid that ministered to some caprice of his, and which he had not hesitated to employ. This frank view hurt and harmed her, and before it could cure her—had it been able to do so—its falseness shook her control anew. She had at first known him for a frowning, threatening, discourteous gentleman. He now gave himself pains to charm her, or, rather, let himself charm her as he could, and certainly he bewitched and frightened her. To her live imagination he seemed to call her across the miles that lay between them. As she took her leave of him his look claimed that she should return, and although he never said anything to bring her, even was forbidding in his good-bys, Lucy Carew fancied she could at night hear him calling her across the dark. And it gave her troubled dreams.

Tempest each day after Miss Carew left, lunched in lonely splendor, smoked and meditated, rode or walked as if he had a goal to make before nightfall. He turned from the Ford and chose the most out-of-the-way routes, for fear he might come upon Lucy Carew in some one of her lonely wanderings! She took them, he knew, but she could not have followed his Mad Anthony tramps.

One day before she began to write he said:

"I want you to lunch here to-day and go over to Penthuen with me. I can't write any more until I've been to the castle. It's an aesthetic tonic I take every now and then, and I know this weather—it's changing; this is the last fine day we'll have for ages. Let's squander it together. Why do you hesitate?" he asked, sharply. "I want you to go."

The day was clear and mild; along the hedges the holly reddened and the warm dampness of the air bespoke rain. The windows of the brougham motor were open, and the golden air swam in upon them soft and sweet.

Miss Carew's dress was red, her coat tight-fitting buttoned up to her chin, and a toque of cloth from under whose furry edges the bright line of her hair ran like copper. She glowed in her corner of the car. The day's brilliance seemed held in her as in a fulcrum.

Penthuen stands in a park of oaks through whose bare branches the gray and red of the towers burned and shone.

"It's Elizabethan," Tempest said. They passed through the gates into a broad court between two porters' lodges and rolled slowly along the avenue.

"It's not so beautiful as Craven."

"Ah!" Tempest looked delighted. "Do you really think that? I wouldn't have you feel otherwise, but I'm afraid you're only kind. Penthuen is more historic. On dit that Elizabeth had it built for an obscure favorite of hers. She made merry here as ever she made; poor, vacillating woman, she was one of love's cowards. There's no one here to-day."

He held out his hand to help her from the car. "We have Penthuen to ourselves and with the Past."

The castle was a museum, its treasures famous in two continents.

At the door they dispensed with the old servant who acted as guide and who knew Mr. Tempest to have the privilege of the house.

Miss Carew passed through the castle by his side, from room to room, an enchanted pilgrim down the avenues of history, from picture to picture, from knight templar to the Spanish Armada. Every now and then Tempest would turn from the object he was discussing to look at her, but after the first time, when she caught his eyes in all their brilliance and passion, she did not meet them again. At the end of the great gallery where the stained windows let in floods of yellow and crimson light he opened the doors and led her out on to a balcony running the round of the towers.

"Let me show you ——shire as nowhere else you will be able to see it." She leant with him over the railing and silently enjoyed, and at length he said to her in a tone whose vibrant feeling made her shake as if he had struck the stone on which she leaned and it had trembled:

"Why do you keep your eyes from me?"

His question and tone were so unexpected that she could not for the soul of her speak—nor move. She leaned as she was, her face from him. After a second, in which she could hear her heart beat, he said quietly: "You are right to do so. Never look at me—or my like—again."

There was such depth of melancholy and despair in his voice that

"You Are Not Glad to See Me?"

she involuntarily lifted her head—to see that he had started sharply and was looking through the open door behind him into the picture hall; then he gave an exclamation and she saw him flush and start; he turned and took her by the arm, thrusting her a little around the balcony's curve out of sight of the window

"Stand there," he commanded; "don't move till I come for you." He had averted his face from her, and bowed and lifted his hat and stepped half way out of the balcony back into the rooom.

"Basil! What a fortunate encounter."

"How do you do?" Tempest said, coolly. "Where are the rest of your party?"

"The rest of my party is one Frenchman!—we have driven over from Galeswater, where we are at a dismal house party. I have left the viscount at the porter's lodge, for when I heard that Mr. Tempest was doing the castle I decided I would rather see you than the treasure with my gentleman. So I told him that, par grand malheur, the castle was refused to-day—that Lady Penthuen was ill, and I should run in and try to see her."

"How well you lie."

"I have often lied well for you," she said, gravely. "Let me come out and see the sunset," and she pushed past him. Tempest made no effort to retain her. Lady Ormond leaned as Miss Carew had done on the balcony rail, but she looked at Tempest fearlessly and not at the sunset.

"Basil, I have scarcely eaten or slept since I saw you."

"You are foolish," he said coldly, "but perhaps you are in love."

"Oh, you will say what you please! and I can't blame you. But you are cruel. How well you look, how handsome, and how austere."

She put her hand on his arm. "I don't believe one word of what you wrote to me."

"Hush," he said, furiously. "I forbid you to speak of it."

Lady Ormond said gently: "Forgive me—only don't blame me too hardly."

"I don't blame you."

Leaning as she did towards him, her hands on his arm, she failed to draw from his face animation or interest—nothing save cold regard, impatient and annoyed.

"You are not glad to see me?"

"No, Lady Ormond."

"Ah," she cried sharply, "you are never polite. Why do I tempt your rudeness! It was a trap you set for me, Tempest, you tried me—I believe it now."

"Lady Ormond," he said, "you must go to your guest. He will be impatient."

Her eyes filled with angry tears.

"Come," he said more kindly, "scenes are unlike you. What does all this avail?"

"Nothing," she said, "if you have ceased to care for me. You don't believe in me, Basil?"

He shrugged. "There is no question of belief or disbelief. I had your answer—it was a natural one. I would not have had you make any other."

"Not if you loved me?"

"If I loved you, I would pray Heaven for you to do as you did."

"I understand," she said, narrowly reading him. "There is another woman. I was a fool not to see it before." He smiled, and it angered her beyond her control. "I see it all—all," she reiterated in a voice strained between tears and anger. "You put before me an alternative no woman could accept—you wished to be free of me. Basil, you have played a wretched game."

He bowed. "You will think what you like. The principal thing is, you are free."

He had led her from the fatal balcony into the long hall, where he breathed more easily, now they were out of hearing. He could be temperate now.

"Letty," he said, "why do you do yourself such injustice? You make yourself a termagant. You're really only a nice woman; you know."

She said nothing. She had lost him and must accept it, but it angered her beyond her grief. She looked at him fixedly. "What is her name?"

He hesitated, and then, the idea pleasing him, he smiled and said:

"It is what a man in my need would choose it should be—a Latin name. You can follow it out for yourself—it means 'light.'"

She studied him. "If what you told me is true—" but his expression stopped the words on her lips. She bade him good-by without giving him her hand and hastily left the gallery.

Tempest did not retrace his steps quickly, but went back as slowly as he could, at loss what to say or do—irritated, discomfited, and somewhat amused. As he stepped out on the balcony and made the turn, expecting to see the flash of the red dress and to encounter with his own Miss Carew's embarrassment, he started—she was gone!

Tempest actually looked over the parapet before he saw that there was an open window leading to another apartment, and he went hastily into a library which he found that he knew of old. In a high-backed chair in the deep ensconse of a window Miss Carew sat reading. The full glory of the sunset wrapped her. Her face was perfectly colorless, but this he did not see, for the light reddened it. Her hands were trembling, but this he did not see, for they were beneath the book she held. She appeared to sit there in peace and to lift to him a serene, untroubled face. He could have fallen at her feet.

The Hopping Prince.

Senator Tilman, at a Washington dinner party, was talking about the duties of an ambassador.

"They are important duties," said he. "A really good ambassador should know all about the country he is sent to. Then he woudn't make the mistake committed by an American in Afghanistan.

"This American entertained the shahzada for three days, giving him a very handsome suite of rooms in his house.

"The morning of the shahzada's arrival, the American host visited him in his apartment, and was amazed to see the royal guest and his entire staff hopping about the floor in the oddest way. They conversed politely and gravely, but, instead of walking, they hopped, taking great leaps of eight or nine feet.

"The host ventured to ask the reason for this hopping. The shahzada politely replied:

"'You see, this carpet is green with pink roses here and there. Green is a sacred color with us, so we are obliged to hop from rose to rose. It is good exercise, but rather fatiguing, I confess.'"

New Uses of Cement.

European engineers are said to be very appreciative of the value of cement grouting for repairing defective masonry, lining wells and for making tunnel roofs water tight. In Germany a well polluted by infiltrations was put into satisfactory condition by lowering into it a sheetiron drum, filling the space between the drum and the walls of the well with Portland cement and withdrawing the drum after the cement had set. The damaged masonry of a tunnel was repaired by injecting liquid cement under pressure. Air at a pressure of seventy-eight pounds per square inch sufficed to force the cement into place. —Youth's Companion.

A Minister's Indigestion

Rev. Fletcher of Tennessee Suggests a Remedy Based on Personal Experience—You Can Get It Free.

There is nothing that is so much sought after as a remedy for stomach trouble, and hence you will be interested to know how the Rev. A. J. Fletcher of Rutherford, Tenn., whose picture we present herewith, cured his indigestion. To use his own words, he says, in part:

Rev. A. J. Fletcher

"I received the sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that I asked you to send me, and I made no mistake in ordering it. I have been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion more or less for about sixty years, and have taken many remedies, but Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has done me more good than anything else. I am 79."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been sold in drug stores for twenty years. The price is only 50 cents or $1 a bottle. It is especially adapted to the uses of babies, children, women and old folks. Its purity is vouched to the Government, and results from its use are guaranteed. If you have never tried it send name and address for a free trial bottle, which will be cheerfully sent to your home prepaid. If there is any medical advice that you want, or anything about your condition that you don't understand, write the doctor. Address your letter, Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

GETTING HIS IDIOMS MIXED

German-American May Have Meant Well, But Directions Were Somewhat Complex.

Passengers on a New York street car were treated to some choice examples of German-American English when a stout gentleman with a robust voice started to relate to a friend his adventures of the previous night.

"Twelf o'glock it wass when he come alretty," said the stout man, "und on de toor rap."

"But," said his companion, "it was only about ten o'clock when he started over there."

"Vell, twelf o'glock it wass when he comes alretty und on de toor rap. Und I tell him de dogtor he vant, he shouldn't go de frondt vay oudt, de sid vay roundt und de pack vay oop. und chust as blain as dot. Und den de plame fool, he rap yet und vake eferypody de house in. Den I put myself my pants on und maype I don't pall him oudt. I call him a chumbp und a lopster—"

"No," laughed his friend, "you surely didn't call him that."

"Call him dot?" snorted the fat man. "Say, I call him eferyting I can lay my handts on."

Returning to Prose.

Flushed with triumph and 90 degrees in the shade, parched and scant of breath, they stood upon the towering mountain peak, and surveyed the gorgeous panorama that spread itself beneath them like a two-inch to the mile ordnance map of the whole world.

"There!" she exclaimed, angrily. "We have climbed all this distance to admire the beauties of nature, and we've left the glass at home!"

Tranquilly smiling, he shifted the lunch basket to the other arm.

"Never mind, dear," he replied. "There's nobody about. It won't hurt us just this once to drink out of the bottle."—Answers.

Newfoundland's Bad Record.

The Newfoundland Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis is carrying on a vigorous and necessary campaign this year in the island. The death rate from the disease in Newfoundland is very large. About one in every five of the total population dies of it, and, what is worse, in the last six years the death rate, which is stationary or decreasing elsewhere, has increased about 50 per cent. This is due largely to the native horror of fresh air in the house.

The Large Way.

Apropos of J. Pierpont Morgan's immense resources, as shown in his recent proffer of $100,000,000 wherewith to build more New York subways, a broker said:

"Mr. Morgan's wealth causes him to look at money in a large way. Once, at the Metropolitan club in Fifth avenue, I told him of the death of a mutual friend.

"'How much did he leave?' Mr. Morgan asked.

"'A matter of five or six millions, I believe,' said I.

"'How deceptive circumstances sometimes are,' he said. 'I always supposed him quite comfortably off.'"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

REBUKING A BORE

LIKE THE WORM, OLD GENTLEMAN TURNED AT LAST

Description of His Improved Condition Raised High Hopes in Listener, Until the Last Sentence of His Talk.

To a hotel noted for its baths for the cure of rheumatism came a woman, who at once made the acquaintance of every person, apparently for the sole purpose of telling them her imaginary ailments, hearing them tell about their own, and discussing at great length the curative properties of the springs.

She made a particular victim of an old man, who, being of a somewhat retiring, silent temperament, was extremely annoyed by her questions and oft-repeated tales of woe.

Finally, one morning, when he was taking a sun-bath on the terrace surrounded by a few congenial acquaintances, the woman approached, inflicted upon him a renewal of her tiresome conversation, and exhausted his patience. His opportunity for revenge came quickly.

"Mr. Ladd," said she, settling weakly into a chair, "we have had so many pleasant discussions about our sufferings——and yet not half so pleasant as they might have been, because I've been so frightfully racked with these terrible pains. Why, I looked into the glass this morning, and you have no idea how pale I was! I scarcely knew myself. But what I wanted to ask you was this: What do you think of these baths? Have you any faith in them. And this climate particularly, and this air?"

"Madam," replied the old man, "I cannot speak so surely about the baths, but there is no doubt about the climate and the air. I can truthfully say I feel at home here. Why, when I first came here I weighed less by more than 50 pounds.

"I could hardly raise an arm above my head. I could not speak an intelligible word. I never left my bed without being lifted from it by strong arms, and my hands were so useless that I could not pick up a knife and fork. Most of my days I spent half-conscious or asleep upon my back, and I did not take any interest in the conversation of my nurse.

"You can see now that I have a little hair. When I came to this town there was not a spear of it on my head. I needed attention night and day. I was so weak and helpless that a child of four years might have choked me to death without its being in my power to resist. That was when I first came here."

"Gracious!" cried the woman, excitedly. "You give me so much hope! How long have you been here? When did you first come?"

"Madam," answered the old man, solemnly, "I was born here."

Of No Use.

"When I was your age," said the man to his little son," I was the best behaved boy in town. My parents would not allow me to play in the street; they made me keep my face washed and my hair brushed; they compelled me to be well mannered at all times, and I was sent to bed early every night and awakened early in the morning. My parents trained me to be a model, obedient, polite boy. Why can't you be like I was at your age?"

"But, papa," answered the lad, "what would be the use? It doesn't seem to have done any good in your case."

For Your Enlightenment.

When a man tells you he wishes you to understand that he is a gentleman you may take it for granted that he is afraid you might not find it out otherwise.

Makes Delicate Perfume.

To impart the delicate fragrance of any flower to one's letters the oil of any desired flower can be added to the writing fluid. Scent the blotter and place it with the letter paper, but do not put flower oil or perfume upon the letter. A package of invitations can be scented by keeping them over night in a closed jar containing oil of flowers on white wool or cotton.

Ready.

Lord Granard was once visiting some of his tenants. One of the farms he visited contained a large assortment of live stock in a more than usually healthy state, and halting before a sty he said to the owner: "Those pigs of yours are in very fine condition." "Yes," agreed the proud farmer, "if we were all as ready to die as them, my lord, we'd do."

In Modern Times.

"Hang it all, Ethel, must your aunt go along?"

"Yes, George; but when everything's going nicely you can pretend that something's wrong with the machinery and that it's absolutely necessary to lighten ship so we won't be all killed, and then we'll drop auntie overboard with the parachute."—Life.

Aids to the Digestion.

Where nourishment and health are concerned laughter and good will are vigorous promoters of the digestive functions. The court jester was a valuable piece of dining room furniture in olden times, and a good-natured and cheerful guest, who keeps up a lively and entertaining conversation at table, does more to aid digestion than all the nostrums ever invented.

Icelandic Wayside Poetry.

Mr. N. P. Fenwick, Jr., notices a curious custom in Iceland of depositing written verses on a cairn, to be found by the next passerby. He translates one so found by himself as follows: "I am sitting here late and early; hungry and cold I linger. Sincere friend, will you not warm the old one?" The reference is to an old crone supposed to inhabit the cairn.

A Sensation in Women's Apparel

The Globe DEPARTMENT STORE

WAUKEGAN'S BEST & BIGGEST STORE

Rather a strange incident happened last week. A large shipment of women's suits, dresses, coats and other apparel that had been purchased by a big southern store was shipment by mistake to a western point not many miles from Waukegan. Rather than pay the return freight and expense of handling, the entire consignment was offered to us at a sacrifice; a price much lower than the garments cost to make. Though our stock needed no replenishing we concluded that, in view of the low price which the manufacturer made us and the desirability of the garments, to buy the entire consignment and give our customers a genuine bargain treat. We know our effort to save your money will be rewarded by a multitude of buyers.

Women's Suits that usually bring $18.00 at only $8.75

SEEMED LIKE THE OLD TIMES

Young Man's Visit to Telephone Exchange Was with a Definite Purpose.

A hush fell over the young women in the telephone exchange when they saw him enter. It was not a perceptible hush; the noise of the instruments and of the operators who were engaged in saying "Hello!" kept it from being that.

The visitor was a young man, but his face was full of ennui and other foreign expressions. These all vanished as he heard the din of conversation and machinery about him.

"Who is he?" asked one of the young women.

"Him?"

"Yes."

"Why, he is a man who was once a swell, but he lost his money and his friends. Whenever he begins to pine for his old associations, he comes up here and thinks of old times and feels happy."

"I don't see what he wants to come here for."

"Why, he listens to the noise, and imagines he's at a five-o'clock tea."

Cat's Sense of Locality.

A kitten about six months old was taken to a house a few miles distant from its birthplace, confined in a room and tenderly cared for during a week, and then set at liberty. It was supposed to have become habituated to its new surroundings, but it returned to its old home on the day of its release. The sense of locality and direction was exhibited still more strikingly by an old tomcat, which was stolen and carried a distance of 20 miles, confined in a bag. The cat was imprisoned, but made its escape, and in a few days reappeared in a pitiable state at the home of its former master, which was separated from that of the thief by a high wooded cliff.—Scientific American.

WANTS PARTY UNITY

TAFT IN SPEECH EXTENDS OLIVE BRANCH TO THE INSURGENTS.

"TIME FOR DOING THINGS"

President Says No Man Has Right to Read Another Out of Republican Fold—Demands Support for Measures Pledged.

Washington.—Determined to sound no "keynote speech," President Taft Saturday evening went to the banquet of the League of Republican clubs.

He announced his determination in his first sentence; but in the next few moments he had enunciated a call to party unity and a statement of his attitude toward insurgency which brought the diners to their feet with yells of approval.

The president declared he had no quarrel with the insurgents; that he sought to read no one out of the party, but that he proposed to demand the party should judge its members by the support they give to the party legislation during the remaining months of the present session of congress.

"This is not exactly the time for speaking, except in the two houses of the national legislature," said the president. "This is the time for doing things; the time for voting upon and passing the measures to which the party has pledged itself.

"After congress has adjourned, then is the time to form our lines of attack against the enemy.

"We are reading no one out of the Republican party. We want all of them within the party ranks. They have the opportunity to establish their claim to Republicanism by that which they shall do as legislators in both houses of congress; by helping to enact the legislation to which the party is pledged. Old friends who in good faith stand to the enactment of legislation to redeem the promises the party has made have the right to stand forth as Republicans. If they don't to stand with the party or help the party to the enactment of its legislation, I have no quarrel with them. They have the right to vote or speak as they will, but we want their aid as Republicans so long as they will be Republicans. The Republican party is not a rigid party. We may not all agree in our opinions upon legislation, and we have the right to express those opinions within the party.

"But when the evidence is shown that a man does not desire to support the Republican party; when he shows himself unwilling to redeem for the party the pledges made to the people by the party; when he withdraws support from the party and wishes success for another party, then we have the right to say that the label he bears is not Republican.

"No man has the right to read another man out of the Republican party. He reads himself out if he is disloyal to the party, and if not, he can, by his own words, show that he is loyal. So you see it is in no defiant spirit that I am here. I want the help of all Republicans, whether or not they may in the past have slipped away a little."

ATTORNEY GENERAL DEFIANT

Defends Administration Acts—Says Pledges Are Fulfilled to President's Limit.

Chicago.—George W. Wickersham, attorney general of the United States, speaking for his chief, William Howard Taft, Saturday presented to the Hamilton club of Chicago a comprehensive, defiant defense of the present administration.

And he concluded with the following warning or appeal that reminded many of those at the banquet of the scriptural words: "He who is not with me, is against me:"

"I speak to an assembly of loyal Republicans. I am sure I voice your thought when I say the time of running with the hare and hunting with the hounds is over and every one must choose whether or not he is for the president and the Republican party. He that 'hath no stomach to the fight' let him depart. Treason has ever consisted in giving aid and comfort to the enemy. If anyone wishes to join the Democratic party let him do so. But let him not claim to be a Republican and in and out of season work to defeat Republican measures and to subvert the influence of the Republican president."

All blame for non-fulfillment of pledges he placed on congress, to which he said, President Taft had caused to be submitted the bills embodying the promised legislation.

And tracing the blame still farther he found that if the bills failed to pass congress it would be due to the action of the insurgents, whom he did not hesitate to class as "traitors" and selfish obstructionists.

CATCH BANDITS IN BATTLE

THREE BANK ROBBERS SHOT BY MARSHAL AND DOCTOR.

Blow Safe at Coal City, Ill., and Vainly Attempt to Escape on Freight Train.

Coal City, Ill.—The depredations of the James brothers were vividly brought to mind when five bank robbers fought a desperate battle with officers and posse after they had looted the Coal City State bank just before daylight Thursday.

The bandits gagged and bound the town watchman and engineer, blew the bank safe, boarded a freight train and fled with $2,000 of loot, to be cornered by the quick wit of a telegraph operator.

Three of their number were captured by the posse that waylaid them, while the other two escaped with the booty.

The bandits were all Chicago youths.

The bandits entered the town on a passing freight train and began operations by tying Barney Ghetto, the night watchman, and Washington Frie, the night engineer of the electrical plant.

They then blew up the bank building with a terrific charge of nitroglycerin and leaped on a west-bound Santa Fe freight train with their plunder. Three hours later three men, believed to be of their number, had been captured by Sheriff Thomas Steel of Morris, Ill., who had been notified by the night watchman after the latter had broken loose the ropes which held him and made possible the organization of the posse.

Just as the train carrying the five bandits pulled out of the town, Ghetto succeeded in cutting his bonds and rushed to a telephone and notified Eugene Miller, the night watchman at Yazoo, seven miles south of Coal City, and he, with Dr. E. D. Watts, who happened to be at the station at that time, lay in wait for the robbers. Watts was armed with a repeating shotgun, and Miller carried a revolver. At Mazon the train stopped to switch cars. The bandits leaped from the car as it stopped and hid in the dense clumps of shrubbery which flank the right of way.

Before the train was again in motion Miller and the physician had discovered three men crouching in the bushes and opened fire. The fire was returned and about twenty-five shots were exchanged. The bandits then leaped back on the train, which had started, and escaped once more.

When at last the train came to a stop at Veronia the cars were searched by the sheriff and his men.

In an empty baggage car of the train were found three of the bandits. All three were wounded and their comrades had fled. It is believed that they leaped off the moving train from the side opposite the pursuing posse.

ORDER BUTTER TRUST PROBE

Attorney General Starts Investigation Into Methods of Elgin Board in Fixing Prices.

Washington. — Attorney General Wickersham Thursday ordered a strict investigation of the Elgin board with a view to prosecuting or dissolving the organization as a conspiracy in restraint of trade, or in other words, as the butter trust.

As a matter of fact the Elgin body of butter producers has been under investigation for some time, but the testimony of President Newman and Vice-President Wood before the Lodge committee forced the hand of the Department of Justice and the open order for an investigation was given.

Both Mr. Newman and Mr. Wood testified that while the prices are controlled by New York, the board at Elgin does actually fix each Monday the price that is to be paid for butter for the entire week. As they also testified that within the Elgin district are the southern tier of counties of Wisconsin, the eastern tier of Iowa and all of Illinois, and further that practically all the butter in which the board deals is shipped east.

ANDREW CARNEGIE IS FEEBLE

New York Friends Are Much Perturbed Over Physical Condition of Ironmaster.

New York.—Friends of Andrew Carnegie, who has just returned here from the west, were perturbed by his physical condition. At his home it was declared that he merely was fatigued and that after a thorough rest he would be perfectly well, but the facts that he required the assistance of two men in alighting from his car and that his personal appearance indicated physical unrest or ailment have created uneasiness.

Rivers Bill Is Approved.

Washington.—The rivers and harbors bill, carrying all the appropriations for Illinois improvements and the deep waterway as it passed the house, was finally approved by the senate commerce committee. It will be reported to the senate Monday morning.

PULLMAN RATES ARE REDUCED

INTERSTATE COMMISSION LESSENS SLEEPER CHARGES.

Prices for Upper Berths Are Lowered 25 Per Cent. in Two Specific Cases.

Washington. — America's traveling public is likely to rise up and call the Interstate Commerce commission blessed.

The reason for such action is that the commission has unequivocally taken jurisdiction of Pullman company rates and has emphasized that assumption of authority by reducing the company's rates in a half dozen notable instances.

That important stand by the commission appears in a decision by Commissioner Franklin K. Lane, made public. It is a decision that virtually convicts the Pullman concern of extortion and which, if it is affirmed upon an appeal to the Supreme court will mean a very material reduction of rates throughout the country.

Upon general grounds the finding of the commission is important for two specific reasons. The first is that the commission takes jurisdiction of the sleeping car charges. The second is that the company is not justified in charging as much for an upper berth as it does for a lower. The decision of the commission is that the rates for upper berths should be only about seventy-five per cent. of the rates for lowers.

The findings of the commission were in specific cases, as between Chicago and St. Paul and St. Paul and the Pacific coast—but they show what the commissioners believe are just and equitable charges. Such are indicated to be two dollars for a full night's journey of 12 hours for lowers and $1.50 for the same journey on uppers.

THOMAS F. WALSH IS DEAD

Colorado Millionaire Passes Away at His Residence in Washington From Heart Failure.

Washington. — Thomas F. Walsh, the Colorado millionaire, died here in his beautiful residence, Twenty-second street and Massachusettts avenue, last night of heart failure.

Mrs. Walsh's wife, his daughter, Mrs. Edward McLean, and his son-in-law, Edward McLean, were at his bedside when the end came. His fatal illness dates from the time, about a month ago, when he was stricken in San Antonio, Tex. Accompanied by Mrs. Walsh, the famous millionaire who even then realized his condition, expressed a desire to return to Washington and see once more his young grandson, less than a year old, who through the death of Mr. Walsh, becomes one of the richest infants in the world.

EIGHT MEN BLOWN TO ATOMS

Explosion of 1,800 Kegs of Dynamite Kills or Maims 12 Persons—Two Hundred Have Narrow Escape.

San Antonio, Tex. — As the result of a premature explosion of 1,800 kegs of dynamite eight men were blown to atoms, three badly mangled and one is missing.

The accident occurred 22 miles northwest of Coleman, Coleman county. The men were working in a deep cut on the Santa Fe railroad.

The fact that 200 of the men were eating dinner 200 yards away at the time of the explosion is all that saved their lives. The men who were killed had been left as a guard to the powder. Many of those in the camp were slightly injured by the falling debris.

Slain in Dash for Liberty.

San Francisco. — The sudden dash for liberty of C. J. Collins, a military prisoner, was stopped on the Folsom street wharf by the bullets of a squad of soldiers. Eight rifles spit fire as he ran. He stumbled and fled on. Again there was a volley. He jumped high in the air, came down, staggered on for 30 feet more and fell dead.

Fanatic Kills an Editor.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Editor Frank Skala of the Christian Journal, a Belgian publication, after preaching a sermon in the Second Presbyterian church mission of Woods Run, North side, Sunday, was shot dead as he stepped from the church by Michael Rewdicz, a religious fanatic who also tried to kill Elder John Gay of the church mission. Gay is in a hospital with three bullets in his body and can scarcely recover, while the murderer of Skala has escaped. A hundred officers are searching for him.

ROOSEVELT ITALIAN CITIZEN

Accepts Honor Conferred Upon Him by the Mayor of Historic Port Maurizio.

Porto Maurizio.—Ex-President Roosevelt opened a new boulevard which has been named after him and accepted honorary citizenship of the ancient and historic city of Porto Maurizio amid a repetition of the same popular enthusiasm which marked his arrival.

According to those who have long memories, never before have local, political, religious and all other differences been so completely obliterated as upon this occasion.

The carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and the mayor was pelted with nosegays tied with ribbons, bearing the words, "Long Live Roosevelt," as they traversed the cheering town, until it was overflowing with flowers.

Dead walls were covered with posters bearing such inscriptions as "Roosevelt forever," "Long live Roosevelt," and similar expressions of regard.

The municipal council, at a special meeting, decided to confer the title on Mr. Roosevelt of "Honorary citizen" and to name the new shore drive, which is now under construction and is the pride of the town, "Roosevelt boulevard."

HOLD UP PIONEER EXPRESS

Two Bandits Cut Air-Brake Hose and Fight Conductor—No Money Is Obtained.

St. Paul, Minn.—Two masked bandits made an unsuccessful attempt to hold up and rob the Pioneer limited train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad as it sped through the picturesque region of southwestern Wisconsin.

Conductor A. P. Shumway of Milwaukee, in charge of the train, was confronted on the platform of the sleeping car Ontonagon by the two robbers, who demanded that he signal the train to stop, then throw up his hands. He struck one of the men down with his lantern and retreated into the sleeping car. The bandits had cut the air hose of the train, stopping it, and they escaped.

A few hours later two colored men were taken into custody in La Crosse, Wis., on suspicion of being the bandits. They were heavily armed, but denied complicity in the hold-up. They refused to give their names.

ENGINE HITS STREET CAR

Many Are Seriously Hurt When Locomotive Crashes Into Trolley at Grade Crossing.

Chicago.—More than a dozen persons were injured, six seriously, when an electric car was struck and demolished by a switch engine at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks, East Eighty-fourth street and Commercial avenue.

The car was cut in two and the engine plowed through it. Passengers were hurled in all directions and many had miraculous escapes from death.

The gates at the crossing were raised at the time and the flagman is declared to have been away from his post.

PREMIER IS CENTER OF RIOT

REASSIGN BIG CASES

TOBACCO AND OIL SUITS TO BE REARGUED BEFORE SUPREME COURT.

RESULT OF BREWER'S DEATH

Wickersham Surprised by Sudden Turn in Fight Against Two Trusts—Decide Corporation Tax Soon.

Washington.—The Standard Oil and Tobacco cases were Monday reassigned for argument by the United States Supreme court.

The reargument of these cases comes as the direct death of Justice Brewer. This noted jurist died just a few days after the Standard Oil case had been argued. As Justice Moody was unable to participate in the consideration of these cases, only seven justices were left to give a decision in these cases. The fact that the corporation tax cases were not set for reargument is taken to mean that a decision will be announced in regard to the constitutionality of the law authorizing it within a short time.

Attorney General Wickersham was as much surprised as anyone at the sudden turn in the fight against these corporations. He expressed his utter ignorance of any further knowledge of the action of the court.

Unless a motion to advance the cases is made, they will not come up in the regular order of business for nearly a year. It is regarded as improbable that such motion for reargument before next term will be made. Only three more weeks of this term remain for hearing the argument of cases, although the court has come in before its adjournment, about the first of June, to hear arguments in a particular case.

ARREST MAN AT CAROW HOME

Police Take Into Custody Suspicious Italian at Roosevelt Villa—Pinchot Arrives.

Porto Maurizio, Italy.—The Italian secret service police, who are guarding Miss Carow's villa where the Roosevelts are stopping, Monday arrested an Italian named Magagno, who upon the pretext that he was carrying a letter from a correspondent, endeavored to force his way into the villa. Colonel Roosevelt was absent at the time.

The man was searched but no weapons were found upon him. Immediately wild rumors were spread in Porto Maurizio that the prisoner had followed Colonel Roosevelt from Naples with no friendly intentions. The police thoroughly investigated all these reports and found that the man was from Bologna and had worked as a barber at Ventimiglia.

Magagno explained that he desired to have an audience with Roosevelt in order to get a job as valet when he became president again. A letter written in English and found on Magagno bears out this statement. The police telegraphed to Bologna to ascertain if the man has a police record. They believe he is demented or a harmless crank similar to those who annoyed Mr. Roosevelt during his tenancy of the White House.

Theodore Roosevelt's widely heralded meeting with Gifford Pinchot, the deposed chief forester of the United States department of agriculture, took place on the veranda of Miss Carow's villa, overlooking the blue waters of Porto Maurizio bay. The interview proper came later in the seclusion of the forest that skirts the town at the north.

Mr. Pinchot, who came direct from Copenhagen save for a six hours' stop at Basle, Switzerland, had arrived at the hotel at midnight, rather tired after his long journey and suffering from a toothache.

GUILTY OF SAYLER MURDER

Wife of Victim Sentenced to Three Years' Imprisonment — Doctor Miller Gets Twelve.

Watseka, Ill.—Dr. William R. Miller and Mrs. Lucy Sayler were Monday found guilty of manslaughter for the killing of John Byron Sayler of Crescent City, Ill., last summer.

John Grunden, the woman's father, was acquitted. The jury had been balloting and quarreling for 40 hours. The penitentiary term of Miller was fixed at 12 years and that of the woman at three.

Pathetic scenes followed the polling of the panel. Mrs. Sayler buried her head on the shoulder of her daughter, Golda, and wept audibly. Mrs. Miller threw her arms about her husband's neck as the tears streamed down her cheeks. Even the aged and stolid John Grunden had much difficulty in repressing an inclination to join the others in weeping.

A motion for a new trial for Doctor Miller and Mrs. Sayler was set by Judge Dibell for April 30 in the Watseka courthouse.

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." — Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel (200 miles north of the International boundary). Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception." We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Nearly

70,000 Americans

will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year.

1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

"Uncle Joe" As an Agent of Dan Cupid

WASHINGTON.—On L. White Busbey's desk in the speaker's ante-room of the national house of representatives reposes a packet of letters indorsed "Cupid." It is the filing cabinet of the "Uncle Joe Matrimonial Bureau," established by accident and not incorporated. Every day brings additions to the speaker's mail, from men and women, young and old, from every quarter of the land seeking surcease from the pangs of loneliness. Some of them are rich, they say, and others want to make themselves happy. Some of the writers are quite "choosey," as to the sort of a helpmeet they want and others will take almost any old thing that is willing to trot or even amble in double harness.

The "Uncle Joe Matrimonial Bureal" had a most modest beginning. Out in Stewardson, Ill., there lives a young farmer who has been reading all sorts of newspaper stories and magazine articles about the higher cost of living. He read that lots of young people did not get married because the cost of living was such that penury and sorrow stared them in the face.

He was a bachelor and prosperous, and it occurred to him that somewhere in the land there must be the mate that would make his home happier and brighter, that might be just yearning to get married, yet scared by all this talk of poverty and trouble. The young man wrote to Speaker Cannon. He wrote a modest postal card to say that he had a farm of 120 acres, and that, like the hotel business, there was "always room for one more." He put it up to the speaker to furnish the one more.

Then Uncle Joe in the goodness of his heart told a newspaper man about the young farmer, and the newspaper man put a piece in the paper and the flood of letters started.

Honor for Owney the Postoffice Dog

"OWNEY" is about to come into his own. "Owney" was a dog. He still is, but he is a dead dog. His mounted remains will be on exhibit at the Ohio Valley exposition, to be held at Cincinnati next autumn.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has also arranged to send a postal exhibition to the show. The chief clerk of the department has notified the exposition management that he has selected the leading features of the museum, which will be forwarded in ample time for the opening.

But "Owney" will get the place of prominence. The dog's story makes for pity. Almost 24 years ago the little Scotch terrier was found curled up asleep on top of some mail bags in the postoffice at Albany. He had taken refuge from the cold. The mail clerks adopted him. They at length named him "Owney" because of the frequent question: "Who is your owner?"

One day he followed the mail wagon to the station and boarded a car while the mail was being loaded. He was unobserved till after the train had started. Then the clerks sent him back to Albany. After that he made frequent trips. The employes of the office tagged him "Owney, Albany Postoffice, Albany, N. Y." They requested other mail clerks to affix tags to him on his trips showing where he had been. He soon became so extensive a traveler, however, that he couldn't carry his tags. While he was once passing through Washington the postmaster general gave him a set of harness. From this the tags were then suspended. He traveled from place to place, always following the mail. In addition to covering the United States and Canada, he visited Europe and Asia. The mikado of Japan presented him with a silver medal upon which was engraved the national coat of arms.

"Owney" met a death not in keeping with his honored life. At Toledo, on one of his journeys, he was chained in the basement of the postoffice. A photographer attempted to take his picture. "Owney" barked his objections. A clerk sought to sooth him and was bitten. The clerk spread the report that the dog was mad, and a policeman shot him.

Now he goes back to Ohio, honored, but still a very dead dog.

Thought Friend Poor, Found Him Rich

NAMES can't be mentioned in this story. It must stand upon its own feet. A former Clevelander, now resident in Washington, got word that a Cleveland friend was in town. He found out the friend's address. One evening he told his wife he would make a call. He took a car and got off at a certain circle. Two streets lead from this running in the same direction. He thought he took the right one. In point of fact he took the wrong. One is a first-class residence district; the other is made up of mean buildings. He paused before the number that had given him as the address of his friend. He gazed up at the dusty, dirty outside in dismay. Then he went home.

"I hadn't the heart to go any further," he told his wife. "John must be playing in awfully hard luck."

"Why didn't you go to see?" his wife demanded. "He may be ill and alone."

"He's too proud," said the husband. "I remember that pride of his. It's almost an affliction."

"What are you going to do?"

"I thought I'd send him a check."

"Do you suppose," the wife scornfully asked, "that he would have a check cashed, if he is as proud as you say?"

"Well, I'll send him the money then."

Next day he went to his bank and drew out a hundred dollars in one bill. This he put into an envelope and sent to the address of his friend, writing street and number correctly. He told the messenger not to say where the letter had come from. This answer came in the morning's mail:

"Dear Bill—Well, you've decided to pay that old poker debt after all these years, have you? Much obliged. I'm going to have that bill framed and hang it on the wall when I get home."

The recipient of the letter slowly tore it to bits. His mind went back to the days of that crazy youth that his friend referred to. He remembered the hundred now; he was astonished that it wasn't more.

"I suppose Mary will ask me if I've heard," he mused. "I guess I'll say he was too proud to answer, but he needed the money so badly he kept it."

Ground Hog Rank Faker, Says Moore

WILLIS L. MOORE, chief of the weather bureau, is the victim of a professional "grouch." He has become incensed at the ground hog as a business rival. He believes his competitor should be let in for a share of criticism and not all of it thrown at his head.

"You never pick up a paper," said Prof. Moore, "that you don't see harsh criticism of the weather bureau. We get roasted if the weather is hot. We get roasted if the weather is cold. And when it rains the abuse heaped upon us is terrific.

"No matter what we do it is wrong. If we miss the time of the coming of rain by half an hour we are declared grossly incompetent. People make speeches and say the weather bureau is spending too much money. Then somebody writes a long magazine article about us. They say we never have been right for two days in a stretch since the bureau was established.

"Naturally, being director of the bureau, I have to bear the brunt of this criticism. That is as it should be. Moreover, I am used to it.

"But while the abuse is going around, why not be impartial with it? What about that great weather prophet—the ground hog?

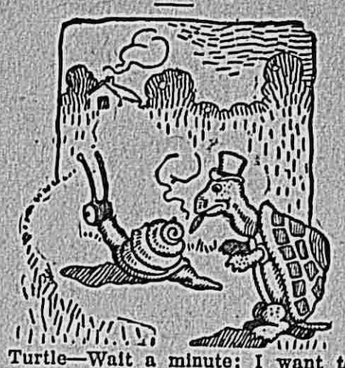

"What about ground hogs! I ask you, is he not the greatest faker, the greatest fourflusher, the greatest buncombe artist that ever pretended to look at a cloud and tell you what was in it?

"What did he do this year? Did he make good? Not a bit of it. He was as far off as we were about the probable weather conditions for March 4, 1910.

"He crawled out of his hole on February 2, saw his shadow, got his picture in every paper in the country, and then beat it back to his lair, leaving behind him the idea that the remainder of February and all of March would be marked by bad weather.

"Was it a reliable forecast? I should say not. We have had the mildest and most beautiful March in years. Yet the ground hog gets off without a single roast. And next year people will be just as eager to believe in his judgment."

NO TIME TO LOSE.

Turtle—Wait a minute; I want to see you!

Snail—I can't; I'm in a hurry; I want to get home before dark, and it's nearly 12 o'clock now.

WASTED A FORTUNE ON SKIN TROUBLE

"I began to have an itching over my whole body about seven years ago and this settled in my limb, from the knee to the toes. I went to see a great many physicians, a matter which cost me a fortune, and after I noticed that I did not get any relief that way, I went for three years to the hospital. But they were unable to help me there. I used all the medicines that I could see but became worse and worse. I had an inflammation which made me almost crazy with pain. When I showed my foot to my friends they would get really frightened. I did not know what to do. I was so sick and had become so nervous that I positively lost all hope.

"I had seen the advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies a great many times, but could not make up my mind to buy them, for I had already used so many medicines. Finally I did decide to use the Cuticura Remedies and I tell you that I was never so pleased as when I noticed that, after having used two sets of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills, the entire inflammation had gone. I was completely cured. I should be only too glad if people with similar disease would come to me and find out the truth. I would only recommend them to use Cuticura. Mrs. Bertha Sachs, 1621 Second Ave., New York, N. Y., Aug. 20, 1909."

"Mrs. Bertha Sachs is my sister-in-law and I know well how she suffered and was cured by Cuticura Remedies after many other treatments failed. Morris Sachs, 321 E. 89th St., New York, N. Y., Secretary of Deutsch-Ostrowoer Unt.-Verein, Kempner Hebrew Benevolent Society, etc."

Britain's Rulers.

Mr. Lloyd-George is pleasantly proud of his nationality, but it is amazing that he had to go back to Queen Elizabeth and the Tudors to find historical precedence for a Welsh government of Great Britain. On the other hand, England has often been ruled by Scotsmen. Of the last three premiers, two—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Mr. Balfour—were Scotch. Mr. Gladstone sat for a Scotch constituency, and so does Mr. Asquith. Ireland has always been busy supplying us with governing men. The Duke of Wellington, Lord Roberts, Lord Charles Beresford, Lord Russell and a dozen others immediately occur to me. It is odd to remember that it is centuries since Great Britain had a purely English sovereign. The Tudors were Welsh. The Stuarts were Scotch, William III. was a Dutchman and the Guelphs are of German descent.—London Chronicle.

Reasons for Envy.

The stingy man had come home and had objected when his wife attempted to kiss him.

"I've just had a tooth pulled," he explained.

"Well, I envy the dentist," his wife replied.

"You envy the dentist? What do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing much," the wife sighed. "Only he's the first person I've ever heard of who succeeded in getting anything out of you."—Woman's National Daily.

ABANDONED IT
For the Old Fashioned Coffee Was Killing.

"I always drank coffee with the rest of the family, for it seemed as if there was nothing for breakfast if we did not have it on the table.

"I had been troubled some time with my heart, which did not feel right. This trouble grew worse steadily.

"Sometimes it would beat fast and at other times very slowly, so that I would hardly be able to do work for an hour or two after breakfast, and if I walked up a hill, it gave me a severe pain.

"I had no idea of what the trouble was until a friend suggested that perhaps it might be caused by coffee drinking. I tried leaving off the coffee and began drinking Postum. The change came quickly. I am now glad to say that I am entirely well of the heart trouble and attribute the relief to leaving off coffee and the use of Postum.

"A number of my friends have abandoned the old fashioned coffee and have taken up with Postum, which they are using steadily. There are some people that make Postum very weak and tasteless, but if it is boiled long enough, according to directions, it is a very delicious beverage. We have never used any of the old fashioned coffee since Postum was first started in our house."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

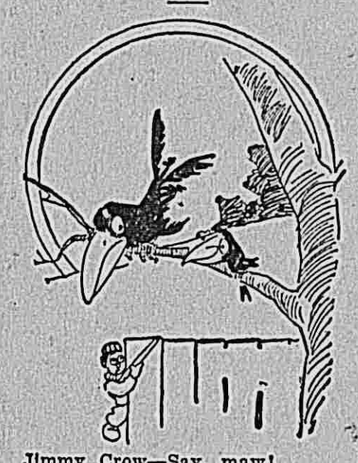

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

UNCLE JOE CANNON

HE ALSO SPEAKS WELL OF CANADA.

No matter what may be the opinion of Mr. Joseph Cannon, no matter if he may be looked upon by some as a czar, and by others as a big warm-hearted man, with many of the instincts that make humanity very bearable, all will admit that he is a man who has been advertised more than any other man in the United States. What he may have to say therefore on any subject, will have weight. Observant, he speaks his mind freely. He was interviewed the other day by the correspondent of a Canadian newspaper. He spoke of his admiration for Canada, and he is quoted in a way that pictures fairly well the personal of the man. The correspondent says he launched out into personal biography, proverbial philosophy, political comment, cynical scorn, broad profanity and sentimental poetry such as one rarely hears in the space of an hour. He discussed the Canadian tariff, and then said: "People say I break the Ten Commandments, all of them. But I don't, at least not often. I did break one of them up in Canada two or three years ago. As I rode from Winnipeg to the Rockies over your great West and saw the finest wheatfields in the world, I thought of Virginia and a lot of our States, and I smashed the Tenth Commandment every hour of the journey. Yes, sir, I coveted my neighbor's land." Coming from a man of the fame of Mr. Cannon, these were words that should have some weight with the Americans who may still have doubts of the advantages that are offered to them in Western Canada. A home amongst the wheatfields. Hundreds of thousands of Americans are adopting it. They go to Central Canada, to any one of the three Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, or to the Coast Province of British Columbia, take up their homestead of 160 acres, and probably pre-empt another 160 acres, or it may be they do not care for pioneering twenty or thirty miles from an existing railway, and purchase a farm. Then they settle upon it and, having no clearing away of timber they begin at once to cultivate it, and make money. That they make money and much more than they could possibly make on the high-priced farms they have left, is the evidence of hundreds of thousands. They do not leave civilized life, they but remove from one sphere to another. They have splendid social conditions, churches, schools, rural telephones, splendid roads, railways, convenient just the samo as what they left, and what is more, they get much greater returns from their crops, which give abundant yield. The climato is perfect, and it is no wonder that most flattering reports are sent back to their friends in the States, and it is no wonder that Joe Cannon was tempted to speak as he did. He "coveted" his neighbor's land.

Growth of the Heart.

Remember that the heart grows to resemble what it contemplates.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.
